

PHP And Programming

A school website stores a student's name and age using PHP. The student's name may change when another student logs in.

Why is a PHP variable suitable for storing the student's name and age? Give an example of two variables.